10 am – 12:30 pm Pacific Time.

"I am ready to write another life: out here, on the edge, in the wild." Nancy Mairs

"Where does Wild Woman live? She lives in the place where language is made. She lives on poetry and percussion and singing. Wild Woman is fluent in the language of dreams, images, passion, and poetry." Clarissa Pinkola Estes

In preparation for this workshop, please read one of Marlene's books: A Voice of Her Own: Women and the Journal Writing Journey, or Gypsy Fugue: An Archetypal Memoir.

If you would like to develop a regular writing practice and explore the stories at the heart of your life, please join us for this twelve week writing program. In a circle of creative and openhearted women we will consider a wide variety of writing styles and genres: memoir and poetry, dreams and writing from the body, music and active imagination, fairy tale and proprioceptive writing. Weekly sessions will include teaching and discussion of the writing process, writing together, and breakout groups for sharing your writing. Writers at all levels are warmly welcome. In the second half of this series, anyone who wishes can receive written comments and feedback on a piece of writing. You can read comments by past participants at: <https://www.marleneschiwy.com/wild-women-writing-circles>.
